

Dan Rettenmaier | Dan.Rettenmaier@tmi-stl.com |
Engineering Consultant, Thermal Mechanics January 2010 – Present

Dan Rettenmaier is an Engineering Consultant who works with mechanical engineers and contractors to develop and implement HVAC systems for a variety of different types of building applications. Dan has been with Thermal Mechanics for nearly 9 years working on a range of projects for Fortune 500 companies, Local and State School Districts and Private institutions such as Offices, Banks and Healthcare. Dan's specialty is in the area of Consulting and Design of HVAC systems as he spends a considerable amount of his time reviewing plans, designing custom Air Handling Units for unique applications and applying his knowledge to the mechanical design of the HVAC systems.

Education:

University of Missouri, Columbia
Year: 2005 - 2009

Dan has a degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Missouri Columbia.